GROW SWEET POTATOES IS ADVICE TO FARMERS

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE ISSUES SPECIAL BULLETIN ON THE SUBJECT.

Washington, D. C., March 29.—On the heels of an announcement by the United States Department of Agriculture that there is a large supply of storage Irish potatoes in northern stores, and that consequently truck growers will receive small return for their potato crops this year, comes an encouraging bulletin from the department on the subject of sweet potatoes. The bulletin says that the sweet potato crop is one of the most important in the south and that the acreage could be greatly increased without reducing the unit value of the crop.

The explanation for a better future in the potato crop lies along the line of better storage so the year's supply can be constant. Irish potatoes can be found in the market all the year round, but sweet potatoes are scarce even in southern markets at some seasons of the year. Thousands of southern farmers, the department's bulletin says, do not have enough sweet potatoes for home use throughout the year and very few of the small cities and towns in the south have a continuous or sufficient supply. The small cities of the west and middle west are not supplied with sweet potatoes except for a few weeks in autumn.

Sweet potatoes have risen greatly in demand for the past few years for canning. Canners have contracted for sweet potatoes for 35 or 40 cents a bushel delivered at the factory, and sales at canneries have relieved growers of the necessity of furnishing packages.

Besides growing sweet potatoes for human food, the bulletin points out that on light soil that will produce from twenty to twenty-five bushels of corn to an acre, from 100 to 150 bushels of potatoes can be grown with the same care and attention. Moreover, hogs can do their own harvesting.

In naming a number of varieties of sweet potatoes which can be profitably grown for human food, the department calls attention to a truth that has greatly affected the sweet potato market, namely, that care should be taken to grow the varieties most liked by the section where the potatoes are to be marketed. The complaint of southerners in Washington against the sweet potatoes here is that they are too dry. They miss the dripping sweetness of the Spanish and yellow yam of the south, and object to the mealy quality of the Yankee variety.

Southern potatoes, however, have always failed to reach northern markets, for the reason that few growers take the trouble to cater to the northern taste. The sweeter the southern potato, the better to the southern taste, but northern people have a different taste. Only occasionally in

This week will see the end of some of the schools of this county. Probably the first school to close will be the Sunnyside, where Miss Lola Mae Chance is teaching. This school has just been painted. It is now one of the prettiest schools in the county. They will not give what we term a "school closing." Will just drop off until next term.

Miss Ruth Harville, teacher of the Glenn Hill school, gave a box supper the 27th inst. which was indeed a success. The sum of sixty-four dollars was raised with which to have the school house painted and otherwise improved. Miss Harville has a good school and she is receiving the hearty co-operation of the patrons of her school there. You may keep an eye on this community. They are coming to the front.

Teachers will be obliged to put off the teachers' institute again from the second Saturday until the first Saturday. May an account of the meeting of the high school in Milton on the day we selected for our meeting here, as so many of the teachers desire to attend this meeting. You will be able to get your checks by coming in on Friday afternoon, or early on Saturday morning. We try to have them ready for you by that time, sure. The same program will be used the first Saturday in May as was published for the April meeting. Tell your neighbor teacher or about this change, as she may not see this notice.

If some teacher has accomplished some worthy improvement in his or her school, if you will write to me just what it is, I will see that credit be given you for it in the survey which Prof. Duggan is now having published. If you have any clubs, such as the girls' canning club or the boys' corn club, or mothers club, let me know about it, and we will give you credit for this work. Please do this, as we desire to look as well as possible on this report.

Miss Wood has had the following letter returned to her unclaimed because the routes were not given by the teachers who sent the names in: Miss Nettie Lee McCarthy, Statesboro, Ga.; Miss Carrie Mae Brannen, Statesboro, Ga.; Miss Mollie Smith, Statesboro, Ga. The letter, please send in the proper address at once to Miss Wood, so that these girls will receive proper instructions. Girls who have failed to get tomato seeds and instructions promptly, write to Miss Polly Wood, Statesboro, Ga., and she will again send them out to you.

It might be a good idea for the schools to have their water for supplying the children while in school to drink tested to see if it is free from typhoid bacteria. This can be done by simply getting a gallon jug of the clear and send it to the state chemist. It might save the life of that little girl of yours. It is worth your while. Suppose you have this done, and then you will know that your water is pure, or is to be made pure. So many of the wells are filled with surface water that it is evident that the water is not pure, and we must do something to supply pure water for the children for drinking purposes. Too, we ought to supply all of our schools with drinking fountains so that no child will drink where another has placed its lips. Health is worth more than all else. Let us try to protect the health of the children while in school.

Courier-Herald Hit by Fire.
By a fire which originated from an unknown cause, the Dublin Courier-Herald suffered loss approximating $7,500 last Sunday afternoon. With the aid of the Dublin Citizens, who loaned the use of their outfit, the Courier-Herald was out on time with their daily Monday afternoon.

Washington even does not find a real sweet potato. The Virginia and Maryland growers usually cater to the eastern trade. Northern people like a dry sweet potato, just as they like a dry Irish potato, and they refuse to be educated.

The poor quality of potato pie in Washington makes it a distinctly northern delicacy, with no chance to draw recruits. Southerners eat it out of respect for their recollections and in spite of the starch and other stiffening the chefs seem compelled to put in it and bravely endure the assaults of scoffers from other sections. A newspaper man from Milwaukee sitting at a table occupied mainly by southern reporters had the nerve the other day to say that potato pie is merely a cheap imitation of pumpkin pie. Only the fact that he has never had an opportunity to taste the genuine article saved him.

UNDERWOOD AND DAVIS TRY TO DIG THROUGH JAIL FLOOR

One Held for Contempt of Court and the Other on Stealing Charge.

Otis Underwood and Sid Davis, inmates of Jailer Mallard's hostelry, failed in an attempt to break away from his watchfulness of the jailers wife, and as other conditions which militated against them.

About the middle of the afternoon Mrs. Mallard became aware that an attempt was being made to break jail and she called her husband to the house.

Upon investigation it was found that Underwood and Davis had succeeded in cutting a hole through the cement floor in the corner of the cell, and were beginning to remove some of the bricks beneath. Only a small start had been made, and it would have taken a long time for the men to finish their job, if, indeed, they ever could have done so. The work was being done with a small piece of iron and a stick of wood.

Underwood recently was tried in the ordinary court on a charge of larceny, but was found sane. He is being held for contempt of court in refusing to pay alimony to his wife, which was recently awarded by the superior court. Davis is held on a charge of stealing, for which he was convicted at the March term of city court. He appealed for a new trial.

BRITISHER LAYS BLAME ON GERMANY FOR PRESENT EUROPEAN CONFLICT.

London, March 22.—"War might have been avoided by a European conference when and wherever Germany desired," is the declaration of Foreign Secretary Grey this afternoon, addressing a gathering here assembled here to hear a lecturer discuss the strategy of the war.

Continuing he said: "Germany, from her experience in the Balkan conference, knew she could count on our good will and that we were ready to do last July what we did before. But Germany refused every suggestion. We now know that Germany had prepared for war, and only those who have planned for war can prepare for it."

within living memory that Prussia has made war upon Europe, and we are determined it shall be the last time.

"The expenditure of hundreds of millions of money and loss of millions of lives might have been averted by a conference of the European powers held in London or at the Hague. We have never had a conference of this kind, and whatever form Germany would have consented to hold it. It would have been easier far and have settled the dispute between Austria-Hungary and Serbia which Germany made the occasion of the war than it would have been to succeed through the Balkan crisis two years ago."

"Last July France, Italy and Russia were ready to accept a conference. Germany refused to put in it and bravely endured the assaults of scoffers from other sections. A newspaper man from Milwaukee sitting at a table occupied mainly by southern reporters had the nerve the other day to say that potato pie is merely a cheap imitation of pumpkin pie. COMMISSIONER PRICE SENDS WARNING NOTE

ADVISES GEORGIA FARMERS TO LISTEN TO REASON AND CUT COTTON ACREAGE.

The State Department of Agriculture views with deep concern and alarm the reports which come from several sections of the state to the effect that no active steps are being taken looking to a reduction of the cotton acreage this year as compared with last. These reports are by no means general, for in many counties effective plans for a reduction of 25 per cent as compared with 1914 have already been made.

"How anybody can find in these figures anything to encourage him to plant practically his whole farm in cotton is more than I can see. I want to give fair warning against it. If the farmers do it, they are going to suffer. I do not believe they will do it, but this is one thing we ought to be absolutely sure about. It is the only safe way."

SALES ON FERTILIZER
ARE OFF 60 PER CENT

THESE ARE FIGURES SHOWN BY RECORDS OF STATE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Atlanta, Ga., April 5.—The records in the department of agriculture indicate most conclusively that the use of fertilizer during this year will not be sixty per cent of the amount used last season. During the previous year the season's sales were for 1,382,098 tons of fertilizers, and of this amount sales were for 1,080,122 tons in January, February and March. During the first three months this year sales were for only 534,982 tons. From these records we see that the purchases of fertilizers this year are 50.47 per cent of the amount purchased last year, and we further see that about five-sixths of the fertilizer used in 1914 was purchased by the first of April, or rather contracted for.

It is very evident, therefore, that the farmers of Georgia are cutting down their fertilizer bill by half. All of this proves most conclusively that the yield of cotton in Georgia for this year will be very much less than last.

Even if the European war should end within a short time and we should make anything like the crop of 1914, we could not expect anything but low prices for it. The United States cotton bureau shows that this country has consumed in the past seven months 25,000 bales less than for the same period of the year before. Its figures also show that foreign shipments up to date have been approximately 1,760,000 bales less than for the same period of a year ago. So that in the face of the record crop the world's consumption of our cotton has been nearly two million bales less for the seven months up to about the first of March than for the same period of the year preceding.

... THE HOME ...

ECONOMY IN THE HOME.

The wise expenditure of the family income means a great deal to the income of the home. In fact, it means comfort and plenty, whereas the utter disregard of system, the needless extravagance on some lines, and stinting in other places (and sometimes in important places) will bring untold discomfort with discontent following in its wake.

It is discouraging to the man who places the proceeds of his daily toil in the hands of one who has promised to be his help-mate, to have her carelessly spend it, with no thought for the rainy day that is sure to come to us all. It is well to teach children the value of money as a servant, as well as the danger entailed in allowing the love of money to obtain mastery over us.

The necessities of life are few. We imagine we need a great many things we can do without and be better off for the lack of them. Some one has said, "The best things any mortal hath are those that every mortal shares." Such things as fresh air, sunlight, home and friends, and the capacity and desire for work bring content.

"It doesn't cost money, as many suppose. To have a good time on the earth; The best of its pleasures are free unto those Who know how to value their worth."

To run a home successfully is the biggest job a woman can find. It is a steady job, but not a successful one until she learns to run it without being a slave through all the hours of the day. A woman can, and should arrange her work so that she will have a few hours each day for self-improvement.

PART 6.

Jefferson Davis ran for the legislature and was defeated, after which he was elected, became U. S. Senator, then a member of Pres. Pierce's cabinet, as secretary of war. He successfully reorganized the army, and was the first to suggest the trans-continental railway. He then became U. S. Senator under Pres. Buchanan, and made a very strong speech on state sovereignty. When he heard his state, Mississippi, had seceded he returned to his lot with her. He was made major general of the army, just what he most desired. When the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States met at Montgomery, Ala., he was chosen president without opposition. He did not seek or desire this honor, but ever went there duty called.

Abraham Lincoln also ran for the legislature, and was defeated, but afterwards elected. He became a member of Congress in 1846. Then in 1860 was a candidate for U. S. president on the republican ticket upon an anti-south platform, and was elected.

President Davis served one year as president of the Confederacy, was re-elected for the second term of six years and died the best he could combat overwhelming odds. When Gen. Lee surrendered, he was rapidly making his way to join the last division of the army under Kirby Smith in Texas, when he was captured at Irwinton, Ga., and taken prisoner to Porters Manor to await trial. A reward of $100,000 was offered for his capture. He was put in chains and treated with great indignity. It is to be wondered at that he fell to the floor the blacksmith who came in to rivet the chains? He remained in prison two years. The United States authorities did not heed the requests from Judge Reagan of Texas, and Gen. Howell Cobb of Georgia,

THINGS WOMEN ARE DOING.

The foremost magazine writer of today in the United States is a woman—Miss Ida M. Tarbell.

One of the most successful architects in this country is a woman—Miss Josephine Wright Chapman. She builds homes, churches, libraries and public buildings, but prefers the designing of homes.

The head of the public school system of Chicago is a woman—Mrs. Ella Flagg Young.

Among the leading American writers of fiction are two women—Margaret Deland and Mrs. Edith Wharton.

Several of the most interesting magazine writers of today are women, among them Grace Richmond and Zona Gale.

Margaret Wilson, the daughter of the President, is exalting the position she fills, by contributing a portion of her time and thought to settlement work, trying to better the conditions of the poorer classes.

The name of Jane Addams, of Hull House, Chicago, is a household word. She is considered by some the greatest woman in America as well as the most successful philanthropist.

For an immediate trial, which they knew would acquire him, for greater leniency in the treatment of him. When it was discovered that a trial would condemn the north, by a state-mandated jury, the north was affected, he was released from prison under bond, and Horace Greely said, "I will go on his bond that the north may seem to be magnanimous."

He returned to his home at Beauvoir, Miss., a gift from a devoted friend and admirer, Mrs. Sarah Douglas. He lived there until his death, which occurred in New Orleans in 1889. He was buried in New Orleans, and his body later removed to Richmond, Va.

As Bishop Gailor said, "For twenty years he bore the obloquy of treason at the hands of those who were afraid to try him as a case of justice, which occurred in New Orleans in 1889. He was buried in New Orleans, and his body later removed to Richmond, Va.

Both believed in the constitutional rights of the states. Both believed in the right to hold slaves. Both were opposed to social and political equality for the negro. Both believed it would be disastrous to free negroes among their former masters. Both believed in educating the negro along industrial lines. Both believed in preserving the Union, if possible. Lincoln believed and urged the colonization of the negro. Davis believed in the gradual emancipation of the negro. He thought the south was the logical home of the black race, and that the southern people better understood him and were more ready to make excuses for his shortcomings. He believed that in the south the negro could always find sympathy, protection, religious instruction, work and a home.

It has always seemed to me that when birthdays are being celebrated in the south, the negroes had better celebrate Davis's birthday than Lincoln's. He was their best and truest friend. Besides, it was Henderson's 13th Amendment after Lincoln's death that freed them. Davis was the man who freed them.

Did Davis have any trouble with his cabinet? He certainly did. Alexander Stephens, his vice-president, frequently disagreed with him. Some of his cabinet resigned. Some accused him of being impetuous and partial. George Vest said, "Had Davis's cabinet stood by him notwithstanding they did not agree with him, the Confederacy would not have failed." Some of Pres. Davis's generals felt that he favored pointedly West Point men over others better fitted to command.

"BE IT EVER SO HUMBLE, THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME"

THE KITCHEN.

"To be a cook one must command. A thousand queenly gifts in hand And leavened with a mother-heart."

A schedule for every day in the week, consisting of work to be done and articles to be bought for each day, will prove to be helpful to the housekeeper, and of invaluable service to the maid.

When washing windows add a small amount of bluing to the water and the windows will be improved in appearance.

In cleaning painted walls if a little kerosene is added to warm suds it will make the work easier and more successful.

Good Corn Muffins.

Beat two eggs thoroughly, add one cup skimmed milk, one half cup water, two cups corn meal, two teaspoons baking powder and one teaspoonful salt. Blend well, if the batter is too stiff add a little water. Put in well greased muffin tins and bake in hot oven until brown.

Fruit Salad.

Take one orange, two apples, two bananas and chop them fine. Add one cup chopped celery and a few nuts. Serve on lettuce leaves with French dressing or mayonnaise. This makes enough for six or eight persons.

Egg and Cheese Toast.

Put one-quarter pound of cheese in saucepan. When melted add three well-beaten eggs, one-half cup milk and salt and pepper to taste. Stir until creamy and pour on brown toast and serve immediately.

Every time a man kills time, he is murdering his own chance for advancement.

Sometimes there is a great deal of comfort in those words, "It could be worse."

One of the real troubles is that we worry too much about the imaginary ones.

We never let the taint on money bother us if we can get hold of it ourselves.

One fool usually admires another, so that most of us ought to be objects of admiration.

Probably no husband or wife would agree perfectly on one another's good and bad points.

A woman who knows more than her husband does, usually knows enough to keep it to herself.

Graduates won't find it as easy to solve problems in real life as it was in the graduation essays.

The man who starts in by washing dishes for his wife may soon be expected to both wash and wipe them.

Carnegie has given away a couple of thousand libraries, but hasn't yet put a check book in any of them.

It is funny how popular some folks are with themselves when they know every mean and ordinary thing they have done.

You might convince a man on a full stomach who would only be aggravated by your argument on an empty one.

Sometimes a woman thinks she has married her hero out of a novel and later finds she has got the villain by mistake.

As soon as people get too good to associate with other people, they become the most unhappy people on the face of the earth.

If all the stories that are told about the dangers of kissing were true, we could name several buxom females who would be helpless cripples.

It is better to live a straight life and save your wife and children from becoming wanderers along a crooked path after you are gone.

Those who would borrow money from you are very seldom those who will ever be in position to return the favor. Did you ever think of that?

A kind word to the living that cost you nothing, brings more pleasure than the most extravagant floral offering you could place upon the casket.

In passing judgment on his wife's dress, a man thinks more of what he doesn't want other men to see than of how it would suit him worn in the privacy of their own home.

You will hear a woman brag about how she presses her husband's trousers and how economical she is in other ways, but you never hear her say a word about how little it cost to fix over her last year's hat.

TRADES BODY FOR STATESBORO REALLY NEEDED.

The movement inaugurated by the esteemed editor of our contemporary looking to the re-organization of a trades body of some kind for Statesboro is entirely a worthy one. Few towns succeed in bringing themselves favorably before the outside business world except through some systematic method of promotion. A trade body has a function which no private institution, however enterprising, could be expected to possess. There are many matters continually coming up before such bodies which ought to be handled promptly and systematically. A town suffers for lack of the proper handling of these matters.

One trouble that Statesboro has had confronting her in the past, and which she will, as all other towns do, have to contend with under our present lack of system, is that all matters requiring public attention have been neglected till the last moment for action, then a few enterprising men have been forced to take hold of them hurriedly with such means as they could command, and the burden has fallen again on the few. These few get tired of being made conveniences of, and occasionally criticism has arisen (not always from the men most entitled to criticize), and general dissatisfaction has resulted. The Times has nothing especially in mind in this connection, yet we are sure our local readers will acknowledge the truthfulness of these statements.

With a trade body to handle such matters of general importance, there would be always some one on the look-out whose duty it would be to plan ahead. Funds should be provided in advance, and men authorized and competent to do things put in the front—men in whom the people have confidence, both as to ability and integrity. No other kind should be expected to make a success of such an institution.

In all sincerity the Times is heartily in favor of any sort of an institution as the public spirited men of Statesboro will support.

SOME SPEEDSTERS, WE.

This world is on a trot, and it is some trot.

We have the turkey trot, the fox trot, the dog trot, the gold trot and the silly trot.

And everybody's trotting. If not for one thing, we trot for another.

The young man trots along in the wake of the dainty maid; the bald head trots around in search of any kind of a skirt; the millionaire trots in harness with his affluence; the dude trots in the halo of his own silliness; the miser trots after his gold, and the grafter trots the road to perdition; the politician trots in the vanguard of publicity, and the voter trots at his beck and call. Everybody's on the trot, and it's a fast and furious trot, with every man for himself and Satan take the hindmost. If you would succeed in life, you must trot, for only the trotters reach the goals of today. It is the day of the trot, and we are essentially a people of today.

Talk is one thing the manufacture of which has greatly increased in spite of the fact that there has never been a time when the market wasn't glutted.

STATESBORO'S OPPORTUNITY TO GET A UNION STATION.

The need of a union passenger station for Statesboro is one of the Times' well-known hobbies. With absolutely no more interest in it than any other citizen of Statesboro—having no real estate to offer for sale at an enhanced valuation—the Times has advocated the thing in season and out of season at every sort of an excuse. Men who might have had some influence in the matter if they had taken hold of it, have said, "Yes, it is the right sort of move—it ought to be done." And with that they dropped it.

As a matter of fact, a union station is not indispensable—the town has done very well without one so far—yet they are a convenience to which all railroad centers are entitled by law and by reason. Statesboro could have had one a long time ago if she had gone about it in the right way, and she it never going to have a better opportunity to start than right now. It is a well-known fact that at least one more new railroad is heading this way and is a certainty; one other is in prospect and is almost a certainty. This will mean five roads in operation to this place, only two of which (the S. & S. and the S. A. & N.)—the latter operated by the former) having a joint passenger terminus.

No one could want to force a hardship on any public enterprise, much less the railroads which contribute so largely to the material progress of the city; yet the public which contributes to the support of the railroads is in turn entitled to some consideration. All of which is preliminary to this statement: If Statesboro is ever to have a union passenger station, it is time to get about it before the new railroads have located themselves at considerable expense in remote parts of the city.

One new road has decided on a location at the southern part of the city, and the other is to pitch in the northern extreme. Our roads already in operation are conveniently enough located for all practical needs, yet they and the two new roads could be moved together to the great convenience of the traveling public, and that at little expense. Either one of the old roads has facilities in which the others could unite to use. If the people of Statesboro want them to do it, they will get together; if not, they won't.

THE COST OF SAVING A DOLLAR.

There is a fellow in this county (there is in every county, for that matter) who does not take his home paper.

He saves a dollar a year in a way, but this is what it costs him: He gets his news second, third, or even fourth hand, often weeks after it has occurred, always stale, and usually garbled beyond recognition.

He knows little of the mercantile opportunities that are offered in the local paper each week, and because of this information he often pays more than is necessary for what he buys. He knows nothing of many of the important events that are to occur until they have passed—and it is too late.

He is never posted on city, county or state affairs, his knowledge being limited to what others in their generosity may have chosen to tell him. He is hovering on the ragged edge of everything that concerns his home community,

Next October Cotton at 9 1-2 cents doesn't look so bad. That's what it is quoted at and yet some people talk Hard Times.

Our line of Spring Goods has never been Prettier, and we are always looking for the Best Trade.

BROOKS SIMMONS CO.
Statesboro, Georgia

While his neighbors who take the paper are wide awake and thoroughly conversant with local conditions.

He sees others leading the intellectual van, while he trails along in their dust. He is really a bright fellow, but because of his lack of information concerning current events he is generally regarded as "slow."

Does it pay him to hold onto that dollar that would pay for his home paper a year? Apparently he thinks it does. But what do you think about it?

5 or 6 doses of 666 will break any cases of Fever or Chills. Price, 25c.

Call a woman a kitten and pet her face, and she will snuggle up to you and purr. Call the same woman a cat, and you'll be buying artificial eyes.

HOW TO CURE A CHRONIC COUGH

Told in the Following Letter by a Jackson Man Who Knows from Experience, His Word is Good.

Jackson, Miss.—"I am a carpenter, and the gripe left me not only with a chronic cough, but I was run-down, worn out and weak. I took all kinds of cough syrups but they did me no good. I finally got so weak I was not able to do a day's work, and coughed so much I was alarmed about my condition. One evening I read about the active medicinal principles of cod liver oil contained in Vinol, and I decided to try it. Before I had taken a quarter of a bottle I felt better, and after taking two bottles my cough is entirely cured, all the bad symptoms have disappeared and I have gained new vim and energy."—JOHN L. LYNCH, 711 Lynch Street, Jackson, Miss.

WHAT IS A PESSIMIST?

A pessimist is a queer fellow. He couldn't be much else because he is a pessimist. He borrows your horse and then kicks at his gait.

He profits by the prosperity of the town, and then gives it a kick. He listens to a $5 sermon and then drops 5 cents in the collection plate. In the height of prosperity he sees nothing but gloom ahead.

He glazes over his own virtues and then rails at the frailties of his neighbors. He was born with a grouch, lives the life of a grouch, dies the death of a grouch, and turns hell into a realm of grouch.

Don't be a pessimist.

When a man shows jealousy of his wife, he acknowledges that he isn't certain of his own position with her, or of his ability to hold his proper position.

More determined you are that your daughter shall not have a certain beau, the more likely it is that that is just the one she will have.

STATESBORO.

Ladies and Gentlemen:
Statesboro is your city, and it belongs likewise to the boys and girls who live here.

Do you want a clean, nice town to live in, or do you want a dirty, ugly town? It is up to you to decide the question.

Tell her husband and boys of the family how dirty it is to spit on the sidewalks, and drop banana peels, etc., on the walks.

Spring is close at hand; and remember that weeds will grow, and that you ought to cut the weeds down around the premises and in your yard, and on the street in front of your house.

Don't let children and servants throw trash in the streets. You owe it to your town to do your part toward making it a better place in which to live and raise your family. Will you do it?

THROWN ON LOG CARRIAGE BARELY ESCAPES DEATH

YOUNG SAM SMITH LOSES PART OF LEG AND HAS CLOSE CALL FOR HIS LIFE IN SAW MILL.
Sam Smith, a young man about 22 years of age living five miles west of Statesboro, had a close call for his life and is now confined to his bed with injuries sustained in a sawmill accident last Friday morning.

While working about a mill which he and his brother operate, young Smith's clothing became entangled on a bolt head on a revolving shaft. Winding up his shirt and tearing it from his body, Smith was thrown in front of the saw on the moving log carriage. The saw struck the calf of his leg and cut a large gash just above the ankle, severing the leader entirely.

Dr. E. A. Deal was called to attend him and found the young man still conscious and able to give an account of the happening. The severed leader ends were drawn together and fastened, and the foot put in bandages, where the injured man will be kept for six weeks or longer. He suffered most excruciating pain, but chose to undergo the operation without the use of anesthetics.

G. P. Murphy, a painter aged about 60 years, died at the Kinard house in this city last Saturday evening after an illness of only about twelve hours with paralysis. He only partially regained consciousness after he was stricken, and it was realized from the first that his death was only a matter of a few hours. He was first discovered by Mr. W. H. Cannoles, another guest at the Kinard house, who went to his room to breakfast Saturday morning. Mr. Cannoles at once called a physician, and notified other members of the household. The city authorities at once took charge of the case and had the sufferer removed to the sanitarium for treatment. It is not known whether he left any relatives, though he is understood to have been married at one time.

After his burial a letter was received from a nephew in Florence, S. C., requesting that the body be sent to Augusta.

WATERS IN BANKRUPTCY; LIABILITIES DOUBLE ASSETS
P. C. Waters, a farmer and former merchant of Brooklet, has filed his petition in bankruptcy in the United States bankruptcy court. His list of liabilities aggregates approximately $38,000, with assets of only about $15,000. Mr. Waters has been farming on a large scale for many years, and two or three years ago lost heavily in cotton speculations while merchandising. Inability to collect outstanding accounts, with the heavy losses referred to in cotton, is the cause for his present distress.

Marvelously Fulfills Every Pledge and Promise Made by San Francisco

Transportation reports show that every state in the United States and most of the nations of the world were represented in the great throng of 250,000 people who inaugurated the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco on February 20. This picture shows the first day of the exposition, showing the mighty South gardens, gives a glimpse of a small fraction of the opening day throng. In the first six days the exposition had an attendance larger than the combined totals of the Chicago and St. Louis expositions and the ratio continues in a degree to justify predictions of the most spectacular success for the exposition.

All visitors to the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco at some time during their stay at the exposition make their pilgrimage through the Court of the Universe. This is the largest court on the grounds and is the central radiating unit of the architectural and ground plans. Noble sculptured groups embellish it, the two Homer groups—the Nations of the East and the Nations of the West—surmounting the giant arched at the east and west portals. By night the beauty of the court is enhanced by the flood lighting effects.

"They are more than dreadful. They are the kitchen fire. Wait a moment."

TOMORROW IS CLEAN-UP DAY FOR STATESBORO PEOPLE

WHITE AND COLORED JOIN IN MOVEMENT WHICH IS TO BE STATE WIDE.

As a part of the state-wide clean-up day movement, the people of Statesboro are called upon to observe tomorrow, and a large per cent of the citizens have signified their willingness to join in the movement.

With Dr. A. J. Mooney as the leading spirit, prizes were raised to be awarded to the school children who secured the greatest number of signatures to a clean-up agreement, and for the past three days the little fellows have been working diligently with their parents to secure signatures provided for white and colored, totaling nine dollars in cash for prizes. This is to be divided into four prizes, which insures that number of winners among each of the races.

Blank agreements were printed and placed in the hands of the contest, and will be turned in to the proper persons as soon as signed. It is estimated that not less than 1,000 agreements to clean up have been secured, and tomorrow ought to see some good work going on in every part of the city.

Following are those who contributed to the Clean-Up premium fund: Martin Bros., G. P. Lively, M. E. Grimes, J. C. Coleman, Brooks Simmons, E. C. Oliver, P. G. Franklin, H. Booth, J. W. Williams, W. SPECULATORS SCHEME TO FOOL THE FARMER

ADVANCE IN PRICE OF COTTON AN OLD TRICK, PLANNED TO BOOST THE ACREAGE.

The recent rise in cotton on the New York exchange, with corresponding slight advances in the spot markets throughout the south, is the most suspicious occurrence noted in many months. The sinister angle of it is that this advance comes just before the southern farmer is getting ready to pitch his crops.

There is no real reason or excuse for cotton going up. Rather it ought to be going down and hitting low levels now, with millions of bales unsold and with no prospect of being sold. Industrial conditions are such that spot cotton cannot be in any great demand anywhere. England and the United States are alone in the manufacture of cotton goods in the world at this time, and England is buying far below her usual amount. In all rhyme and reason as the time for the new crop approaches the price should be falling lower and lower. If the price of cotton were determined at this time on its actual value according to the law of supply and demand, it should be selling at around six cents a pound. And yet futures in New York are skirting the ten-cent mark.
